Livingston College
Reality

The mid-1960s were a time of social change and turmoil in American society. Young people crowded into colleges and universities that were undergoing tremendous growth.

Toward the end of the decade, students had turned to the anti-war movement . . . and sometimes violent confrontation with university offcials.

Livingston College was born in this atmosphere.

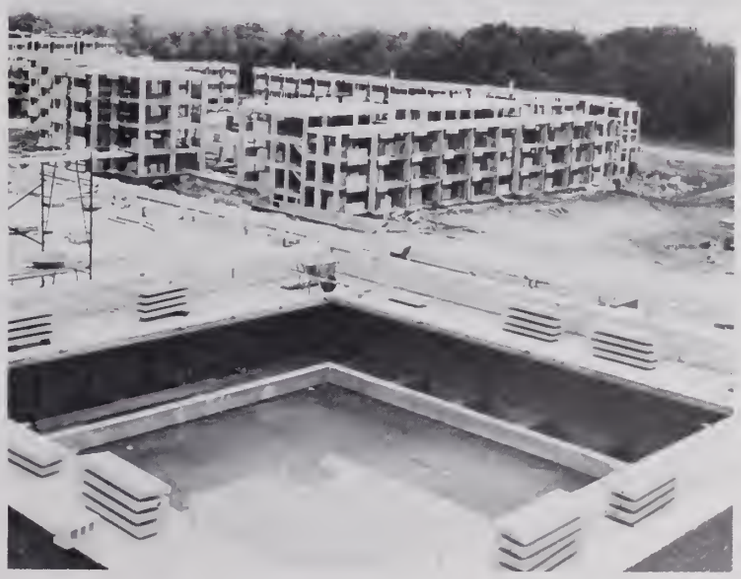
NEWARK

Ernest Lynton

During 1969, Livingston College opened on the site of Camp Kilmer. As a four year, undergraduate liberal arts college of Rutgers University, Livingston espoused a goal of academic excellence as a multi-racial and multi-ethnic college.

During those first years, the fertile ground that is now Livingston was construction and mud. Finally, in 1973, under the deanship of Dr. Ernest Lynton, a physicist and humanitarian, the college graduated its first class.



In 1974, Dr. Emmanuel Mesthene, a philosopher, organizer and conciliator, became dean of the college. Dean Mesthene emphasized the importance of the mastery of basic skills.

The very goals of the college were questioned during the Mesthene administration. However, questioning brought a reassessment of the college's purpose. Dean Mesthene reaffirmed the college's pupose when he stated that "the institution that we offer must never be less than rigorous and demanding, but it must also be flexible, imaginative, and inventive."

A story...
Once upon a time, there was a bunch of people who were stuck in a hole.
attempts were made by various individuals to get out of the hole...
such as desperate arm flapping...

meditation and levitation
This went on for hundreds of years, until they had tried everything except helping each other out

Livingston began a new era of its development with the appointment of W. Robert Jenkins as dean of the college on March 6, 1978.

Dean Jenkins was one of the original planners of the college and the first chairman of the biology department.

The Future

Memories:

At times, it was not easy living at the Rock. Nevertheless, the people and the happenings at Livingston were enjoyable. Remember the beer parties, and the jazz ensemble performing in the Pub. It was nice being with buddies while watching the Livingston athletes compete. Also, don't forget the feeling you got when you asked the lady server in the cafeteria what was being served, and then you actually saw it.

Old Queens

Chartered as Old Queens in 1766, the name of the college was changed to Rutgers in 1825, in honor of Colonel Henry Rutgers. In 1945, Rutgers was designated as the State University of New Jersey.

RUTGERS
THE STATE UNIVERSITY
OF NEW JERSEY

OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT • NEW BRUNSWICK • NEW JERSEY • 08903 201/932-7454

To The Livingston College Class of 1979:

One of the more pleasant aspects of presidential responsibility is congratulating the students who have successfully completed the work required for their degrees.

My only regret in saying goodbye to you is that I did not have the chance personally to meet more of you during the time you were at Livingston. It is my deep hope that your experience at Livingston College, indeed at Rutgers University, was both rewarding and fulfilling for you.

You are about to turn from the solution of one set of problems to wrestling with new ones as you enter upon a new phase of your lives. My very best wishes go with you now, and always.

Sincerely,

Edward J. Bloustein
President

LIVINGSTON COLLEGE • OFFICE OF THE DEAN • NEW BRUNSWICK • NEW JERSEY 08903

Dear Graduate:

Your class is the tenth to graduate from this College and with your graduation you now become one of the more than 4,000 alumni who hold degrees from Livingston College. Those of us who were here in the fall of 1969 and saw the college in its infancy, have seen the initial enrollment of 750 surge to over 3,800 last fall. For me, this has been an especially gratifying experience. When I joined the Livingston Adventure as a faculty member I hardly anticipated that I would ever be writing this letter as your dean, but I can assure you that I am pleased and proud to do so.

I would like to reflect a bit on our past and, in doing so, note some of the changes which have occurred besides the increase in numbers of graduates. Our first year saw faculty offices in quad rooms and classes held in lounges, living rooms, the old officer's club, and any other place where we could get together. Since then Tillett, Lucy Stone Hall, Beck, and the warehouse renovations for biology and psychology have all been completed. Although we do not have that much-desired separate student center building, we do now have a gym and additional recreational space in Tillett.

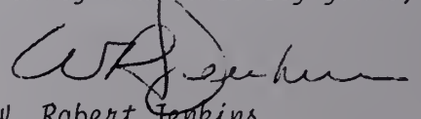
In the early years Livingston was known as a place where students were socially and politically active. This activity has been replaced with a concentration on career goals and concern about our futures as individuals. Thus some of the excitement is gone but to many that excitement has been replaced by a different kind. The stimulation of working together in pursuit of a strong academic experience is equally exciting. As we mature, we are reminded that we are a part of the rest of society to the extent that our worries and concerns differ little from those of others.

The faculty too has changed. We still have a generally dedicated and youthful faculty which gives more of their time in informal ways to students than other college faculties. It is a group second to none so the value of their instruction and direction of you is unsurpassed in other colleges.

At the same time we have succeeded in many ways. The University is now open to large numbers of students who, in pre-Livingston years, did not enter the "hallowed halls" of the State University. We still have a campus as diverse in its people as is the population of the State. Education at Livingston College far exceeds the boundaries of the classroom, laboratory, and studio. This accomplishment is our greatest one and I am certain that you will see changes in society which are led by our graduates. Hopefully, each of you will be a part of these changes and hopefully, they will be for the better.

Finally, don't forget your College. Join our new alumni organization and help us work for our future. Keep in touch and come back to see us.

Fondly and sincerely yours,



W. Robert Jenkins
Dean
